

The DFG Research Training Group 2720 “Digital Platform Ecosystems (DPE)” and the Chair of Organisation, Technology Management, and Entrepreneurship (Professor Carolin Häussler) at the University of Passau invite applications for the position of Student Research Assistant (15 hours per month) remunerated at 12 euros per hour.

Project Description

The Research Training Group is a postgraduate excellence programme and vibrant interdisciplinary research community, whose members investigate the idiosyncratic characteristics of digital platform ecosystems and their implications for value-creation architectures as well as overarching socio-economic and regulatory developments.

As part of this programme, our research project employs qualitative and quantitative approaches to address questions regarding the power dynamics between a platform owner and its third-parties, innovation and collaborative behaviour within a digital platform ecosystem and the implications for our current understanding of entrepreneurship.

Job description

- Support the research activities through literature review, data preparation and by assisting with qualitative and quantitative analyses
- Contribute your own ideas
- Assist with any organisational tasks related to the project

Your profile

- Bachelor’s degree in business administration or related field of study (e.g. economics, information systems or industrial engineering)
- Very good command of English; fluency in German is a plus
- Team player with good planning and organisational skills

What we offer

- Participation in an engaging research project on digital platform ecosystems
- Possibility to gain experience in handling scientific literature and research results
- The chance to participate in events of the Research Training Group
- Flexible working hours and the possibility to work remotely
